Artificial intelligence (AI) is a field of computer science and technology that enables machines to perform tasks typically requiring human intelligence, such as learning, reasoning, perception, and decision-making